

As a logged in user, I can go to the search bar and search for the medications I want (generally the ones I am currently taking) and add them into my profile for today and will be logged into my history. So when I log back in, I can see what medications I took at a certain day. I already have my medications I added to my profile for today, I want to be able to edit my information about a certain medication that I entered. I want to be able to edit the dosage I previously entered or delete the medication from my profile entirely. And maybe just clear my entire medication list if I have new meds.
