

As a logged in user I want to be able to easily access my data. I want to press a button and maybe use my google account to login rather than create an account. I know Google has my info and is able to make a account for this website using that info. But even if I don't have a google account, I want to be able to maybe use Facebook, or Apple. I just want to have a smooth experience and be able to have my medications saved. I can't log in, I want to be able just to generate a new account manually or just be able to use the website at all.
